Carl Palazzolo

New Paintings and Watercolors

October 15 – November 12, 1994

Tuesday-Saturday 10-6

This will be our third exhibition of new paintings and watercolors by Carl Palazzolo. In it he continues his development and exploration of an expressive and enigmatic personal iconography and pictorial vocabulary. A wall of watercolors will introduce various new elements in addition to his by-now-familiar spoon, dangling rope, draped cloth and waterglass. A self-portraiture of sorts emerges from the combinations of imagery, particularly in the multiple-panel paintings and in the smaller paintings, which read somewhat in a serial fashion. As always, Palazzolo's works carry a sure and unmistakable impression of the artist's touch, delicate and gossamer at times, emphatic and very physical at others.
