Peter Soriano

New Sculpture

April 29 – May 28, 1999
Tuesday-Saturday 10-6

Peter Soriano's sculptures are earning recognition here and abroad for their distinctive synthesis of form and color and for their evocative yet elusive references to things in the world other than themselves. Part toy, part tool, part creature, his sculpture embodies qualities of hard and soft, big and small, compact and expansive. A certain sense of humor is also evident in these objects. They display the clean lines and uninflected colors of cartoons, but don't suggest puns or jokes or set themselves up to deliver the viewer a punchline.

His work was included in the sculpture festival at Wanas Castle in Sweden last summer, and has been the subject of exhibitions last fall and winter in Fresnes, Paris and Cologne, currently in Montbeliard and Reims, and next fall in Marseille. Our exhibition here will include six new cast resin sculptures and one color photograph.
